

Talk with Your Doctor

When you talk with your doctor, make it a two-way conversation. Your doctor will ask you questions about your discomfort — how and when it began, what makes it worse, and how severe it is. You may have questions as well.

Questions to Ask: You may want to ask your doctor

- Could my discomfort be caused by an acute musculoskeletal condition?
 - If no, what is the likely cause, and what treatment options are available?
 - If yes, what are my treatment options? Is SOMA[®] 250 mg an option?
- What possible side effects of SOMA 250 mg should I be aware of?
- Can you recommend stretches or exercises that might help?
- Are there any activities I should avoid?
- Are there any dietary supplements that I should not take while using a prescription medication for my musculoskeletal pain?
- In addition to any medication you are prescribing, what else can I do to support my recovery?
- Do I need to file any medical reports for insurance or work purposes?
- Add any additional questions you may have here:
